World Capitals Speculate on Neutrality Agreement Signed In Moscow.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Secretary Hull declared today that the new Russian-Japanese neutrality pact "could be overestimated" and that the policy of the American government remained unchanged.

(By United Press)

TOKYO — Japanese regarded their "neutrality" treaty with Russia today as a blow to the United States.

They believed it secured Japan's northern defenses, enabling the government to devote more attention elsewhere. A bolder attitude toward America was expected to result from the treaty signed in Moscow yesterday by Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, and some observers said it might intensify Japan's moves in the South Sea.

The Newspaper Nichi Nichi said the treaty eliminated Japan's dual strategy of having to guard against both the United States and Russia, which had been her main drawback in the so-called Pacific crisis, and that Japan now could concentrate on her southward program.

Also, Nichi Nichi said, the treaty offered a chance to dispose of the China affair, "because it is only proper that the neutrality provisions will be applied and will eliminate Soviet assistance to China."

The Newspaper Yomiuri said the treaty was "a great shock to the world when the United States entry into the European war is imminent," and that it was a "poignant blow" to Generalissimo Chiang Kia-Shek's Chinese government.

The general opinion was that what were regarded here as recent American attempts to woo Russian friendship had suffered a set-back by the treaty.

Newspapers praised Matsuoka for concluding the pact during his stop in Moscow on his way home from visiting Germany and Italy, Japan's Axis partners.

The pact is effective from the day of ratification, which is expected to come soon after Matsuoka's return. Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye said he believed the pact "will serve as the basis of a rapid solution, in a concrete manner, of various pending Soviet-Japanese questions, and will con-

Salum and Fort Capuzzo Fall Before Speedy Advance; British Cut Off At Tobruk; Greeks Say Nazi Drives Are Repulsed

(By United Press)

LONDON—British infantry has met and hurled back the "Adolf Hitler division" in northern Greece, it was announced in London today, while the Allied Yugoslav army was reported counter-attacking Nazi blitzkrieg invaders in the mountains 130 miles southeast of captured Belgrade.

The defeated German division in Greece was described as an "S. S." force — the Elite Schutzstaffel blackshirt group, originally formed as a guard for the Nazi fuehrer.

Heavy losses were inflicted on the Germans, the British said, in a battle which apparently fought in territory between Phlorina, Greece, and the Bitolj (Monastir) pass, in southwest Yugoslavia.

London military quarters declared that the Yugoslav army had counter-attacked the Germans on both sides of the Morava river, southeast of Belgrade; located a German column at Topola, 40 miles south of the Yugoslav capital; routed another German force at Suharjeka, 40 miles northwest of Skoplje; and recaptured Prokuplje, 18 miles west of Nis.

"Yugoslav morale continues to be good," the British said.

It was this same Yugoslav army which the German high command officially listed as "destroyed" last week, and again today a Nazi communique asserted: "In Yugoslavia, the mass of enemy forces which opposed the German troops are destroyed."

Countering this Nazi claim, the London ministry of information declared there was "good reason to believe that the Yugoslavs have captured Durazzo," big Adriatic seaport 25 miles west of Tirana, the capital of Albania.

Hitler's high command was silent for the third straight day on details of land fighting in Greece—except for the assertion that operations were proceeding "on schedule."

BULLETIN

BERLIN —(AP)— DNB, official German news agency, declared today that British troops trapped at Tobruk were trying to escape by sea, but were under a Dunkerque-like aerial bombardment. Dive bombers were said to be smashing at transports and other vessels in that Libyan harbor.

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN — Axis forces plunging across North Africa in the direction of Britain's Suez canal lifeline have entered Egypt from Libya, capturing Salum, and on the Balkan front the bulk of Yugoslavia's Serbian army has been "destroyed," the German high command asserted today.

Salum, in Egypt just across the border from Libya, and Fort Capuzzo, Libyan fortress south of Axis-occupied Bardia, were captured in quick succession by the rapidly advancing German and Italian units, the daily war bulletin declared.

"In Yugoslavia the mass of enemy forces which opposed the German troops are destroyed," the daily communique said.

"Remnants of the Serbian army are retreating in the face of German and Italian troops into the mountain country along the Adriatic.

"There is resistance only at scattered spots."

The high command was silent for the third straight day on details of land operations against Greece, although it said operations were "developing on schedule."

In Yugoslavia, it said, "further successful" raids were carried out against airports in central Bosnia and Herzegovina, other military objectives and railroads.

At Sarajevo, where an assassination contributed to the start of the world war, Nazi air raids were said to have caused heavy destruction and extensive fires in a large troop camp.

Three ships totalling 28,000 tons were declared sunk out of a convoy by the Luftwaffe in St. George's channel west of England and another 5,000 tons off the British southeast coast last night.

Four Killed as Two Escape at Sing Sing

(By Associated Press)

OSSINING, N. Y.—Two long-term convicts who shot their way out of the Sing Sing prison infirmary in a sensational break which cost four lives were captured a few hours later today in the woods across the Hudson river.

The two gray-clad convicts still were armed with smuggled guns with which they and a confederate, who was later slain, had broken from the prison in a battle in which a prison guard and an Ossining policemen were killed and a convict patient died of shock. The fugitive pair was cornered on the slope of Mount Hood in Palisades Interstate park.

Patrolman William Mullen, an experienced woodsman member of the park's police and one of 250 peace officers trailing them, flushed them from underbrush within a mile of the shore point from which they had fled after forcing a fisherman to ferry them across the river.

The convicts, Joseph Riordan and Charles McGale, both under sentence for robbery, appeared dazed when Patrolman Mullen stepped from behind a tree on the slope below them.

"We'll come down," one said. Other police quickly disarmed them and rushed them to Nyack, N. Y., police headquarters for questioning before taking them back across the Hudson to Sing Sing.

In their desperate short-lived bid for freedom, Riardan, McGale, and John Waters, 30, the slain member of the trio, shot and killed one infirmary guard, overpowered the other, crawled several hundred

The note was the third known to have been presented to the state department by Italy since the ships, along with two German and 39 Danish vessels, were taken into protective custody two weeks ago.

Warmest Easter Brings Out Record Crowd For Services, Parade of Finery.

In weather that was more like the Fourth of July than Easter, thousands of Mansfielders thronged the city's churches for Easter services yesterday morning and then took to the outdoors in the afternoon.

With the mercury at 84 degrees Sunday afternoon, the city had what was believed the warmest Easter on record. Coats were discarded and the Easter parade resembled a prevue of what will be worn this summer.

All Mansfield churches had special services in observance of the resurrection, paying special attention to the need for Christianity in today's troubled world. Virtually every church was filled to overflowing. Throughout the nation the largest outpouring of church goers in history was reported.

County Studies Food Stamp Plan for Relief

City and county officials were conferring today on the proposed adoption of the government food stamp plan as a means of dispensing food orders to Richland county relief clients.

In the city at the request of county commissioners, two federal surplus commodities agents outlined the stamp plan to more than 30 city and county officials, bankers, grocerymen, relief officials and Chamber of Commerce representatives at the courthouse this morning.

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of commissioners, said after the session that the reaction was favorable and steps were being taken to determine how much the city and county will have to contribute toward financing the plan.

Already in use in several large Ohio cities, the stamp plan benefits the grocer by permitting him to handle all the food supplies that go to relief clients. Under the present set-up, grocerymen handle the direct relief orders but surplus commodities are distributed directly to the clients at relief headquarters.

Pope Sees Little Chance For Just Peace In World.

VATICAN CITY —(U.P.)— Pope Pius XII holds little hope for a just peace soon but will continue his efforts "to aid humanity and attain a real peace."

The pontiff, in his annual Easter message yesterday, appealed to belligerents to conduct the war in a more humane manner. Asked them to refrain from using more deadly weapons and to show kindness toward prisoners of war and citizens of occupied territory.

"We indicated the necessary principles for a lasting and just peace which would allow collaboration among nations, but we have little hope that a just peace will be attained soon," he said.

Youth Strangled When Truck Bed Closes Down On His Neck

Pinned beneath the bed of a hydraulic truck which he was repairing, Nicholas Benjai, 19, of near Steam Corners, was suffocated Saturday night at the home of James Bender on the Lexington-Steam Corners road.

Benjai was strangled when the truck bed closed on his neck. It was believed that he accidentally touched a release lever while working. He was alone at the time of the accident.

Bender said that Banjai had driven into the yard earlier in the evening and said he wished to do some repair work on the truck bed. He asked Bender for the use of his lighting facilities. Bender left Banjai for about an hour to go into Mansfield. When he returned, he found the youth lying beneath the truck with the bed lowered.

Bender told Sheriff Oscar George and Coroner Lowell Murphy of Mt. Gilead that he first believed Banjai still living and raised the truck to remove his body but then found he was dead. Coroner Murphy gave a decision

DEBATE: Convoy Problem Due To Come Up In Senate

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Critics of administration foreign policy forecast today that the long-developing debate over a proposal to forbid U. S. naval escorts for war materials would break wide open in the senate this week. The convoy question was of main immediate concern to legislators returning to the capital from Easter vacations today and their interest was sharpened by these two developments:

1. President Roosevelt's removal of the Red Sea from the list of waters closed to American shipping under the neutrality act—an action which raised discussions in congressional circles as to what protection might be given U. S. cargo vessels in event they were attacked while delivering British war supplies to Suez canal ports.

2. Announcement of the Russo-Japanese neutrality agreement yesterday—foes of naval convoys said this pact would free the Japanese for further southward moves in the Orient and provided them with a strong argument for not diverting any naval vessels to convoy duty.

The issue of whether congress should prohibit specifically convoying of war shipments will be considered by the senate foreign relations committee Wednesday. Before the committee is a resolution by Senator Tobey (R-N. H.) to forbid convoying. Indications were that the committee, with administration forces in control, would pigeonhole it.

But Tobey asserted that he and other opponents would debate convoying whether the resolution reached the floor or not.

WARNING: Axis To Fire On American Ships In Red Sea

(By United Press)

ROME—Virginio Gayda, authoritative commentator writing in the Giornale D'Italia, informed the United States today that any American ships which ventured into the Red Sea would be attacked by Axis powers. In an editorial on President Roosevelt's recent order opening the Red Sea to United States shipping, Gayda wrote:

"President Roosevelt must be warned that all American shipping in the Red Sea and Indian ocean at the service of the enemy will receive the same treatment as British convoys. Namely, they will be legitimately attacked by Axis forces which always are present in those seas."

Mr. Roosevelt lifted the ban on American shipping in the Red Sea because he believed the Italians had lost East Africa, Gayda said. "However, the Italians have not lost East Africa yet and all African waters still are Italian zones of operations."

He said it should be "clearly understood" that American vessels attempting to supply the British by way of the Red Sea would be attacked.

U. S. Backs Danish Envoy on Agreement

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking for Myself

I WISH somebody like Marc Connelly would sit down at his purple typewriter and write a "Green Pastures" about Broadway—a fanciful, gay picture of the heaven to which all good Main Stemmers go.

I can picture it as a sort of celestial Lindy's, in which a dinged Lou Holtz exchanges banter with seraph Danny Kaye, and where all the pretty dolls are cherubs, and the whole population flies about talking forever like Damon Runyon . . .

Funniest thing I've overheard in a long time is Arctic explorer Admiral Byrd's remark to headwaiter Carino as he whisked into El Morocco the other night, "Brrr," complained the admiral, "it's cold outside!"

* * *

Current names that intrigue me are Spyros Skouras . . . The circus Thelma Schnee . . . The circus parade this year is the most wonderful I've ever seen. It must be something to keep you awake for a week if you're six years old . . .

Hypochondriacs bore me more than most people . . . I like the way Ella Fitzgerald sings "Lonesomest Gal in Town" . . . In fact, I like the way Ella Fitzgerald sings most things . . . I love the swish taffeta makes when you walk . . .

George Jean Nathan summed up the pure delight of being an actor in a successful play the other evening when he glanced up from his wine in a chic nitery and observed Allyn Joslyn of "Arsenic and Old Lace" sitting at the next table, entertaining his wife's mother.

"Look," sage Nathan observed, "when an actor's a hit he can even have fun with his mother-in-law."

I've always thought the great hero of the ages would be the gent who'd invent a way to banish baldness from the pates of the glamor boys. Now and then somebody reports a "cure," but, like miracles, these are infrequent and surrounded by great legend.

Just the other day troubador Tito Guizar mentioned that his hair was seriously thinning a decade ago until a Japanese scientist suggested a cure. Tito was made to lie for five minutes a day in a position that allowed the blood to his head. During the five minutes he rubbed his scalp briskly with his fingertips.

Now, I am happy to report, Tito has oodles of hair. And if I've started something by this revelation, no doubt that noise you hear will be that of blood rushing to bald heads.

One of my favorite guessing games is played by walking along 42nd street and trying to figure out what's showing at some of the grind houses just by reading the lurid phrases on the marquees. For instance, it's no small trick to read "Coward or Valiant? Only His Loved Ones Knew" and guess just by practiced instinct that it's "Each Dawn I Die" . . . Try it sometime . . .

The Stork club doesn't look the same these nights without Victor Mature. I guess Doctors hospital, with Victor Mature, looks more like the Stork club . . .

I always wonder about those ragged men I see dangling a piece of string with chewing gum on the end into the subway gratings, fishing for coins. I've never dropped a coin into those sidewalk gratings and I can't ever recall seeing anyone else lose a penny or nickel that way . . .

Dogs walking on Park avenue always look more chic than those strolling on Third. Must be the atmosphere . . . Wish Robert Moses would build a little park somewhere around Broadway so the denizens could sit under a tree and watch the world go by.

Leo Dryer, the Cafe Pierre bandleader, got the funniest request of the week the other evening when a girl asked him to stop playing a rhumba.

It seems that some of the busier glamor girls are spending all their spare time (even in the niteries) knitting sweaters for British and Greek soldiers—and it was one of these that sent over a note asking Leo to please stop those South American tunes. "I dropped seven stitches during your last number," she complained! . . .

COMPANY HERE RECEIVES BIG DEFENSE ORDER

Hughes-Keenan Gets $120,000 In Contracts For Cranes. Rail Driving Machine.

The Hughes-Keenan company, Mansfield, had received defense orders totaling approximately $120,000 today from the United States and Canadian governments for heavy cranes and driving machinery.

With an enlarged force of employes, William E. Post, general manager of the firm, said the company was working on an order for 59 tractor cranes and a rail driving machine for the U. S. government and another for 12 heavy cranes for Canadian airports.

Post said the company was "having trouble getting enough trained machinists" to handle the orders, but there was no marked shortage of unskilled workers.

The firm's domestic orders total about $120,000, he said, while the Canadian government's equipment will cost $50,000.

He said the U. S. government's orders must be filled by next Oct. 1 and the Canadian order "as soon as possible."

Included in the U. S. orders is one for a Hughes-Keenan Ram which will be used for driving railroad rails. It will cost approximately $9,000. The 59 cranes for Uncle Sam will be delivered through the International Harvester company, Post said.

The orders augment others for several hundred thousand dollars which have come to Mansfield industrial firms in recent months.

"The demand for workers which resulted from the influx of orders has used up most of the city's labor surplus and created a heavy demand for skilled workers. A number of them who have found jobs were trained in the national defense classes at Senior high school.

Up and Down THE STREET

A streamlined variation of the plan of selling magazines to get through college was offered to J. R. Harrington, manager of the Mansfield airport, Saturday, but it didn't work. Harrington said some girls from out of the state came to him with a plan for exchanging magazine subscriptions for flying instructions, explaining that they were trying to finance a pilot training course. Harrington guessed that the girls either wouldn't show up for their flying lessons or wanted to use their few hours' training here as a sales argument in Mansfield, so he promptly said no.

COPENHAGEN'S REJECTION OF PACT IGNORED

Hull To Tell Minister Nation Recognizes His Right To Act For Greenland.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The United States government intends to uphold Danish Minister Henrik De Kauffmann in connection with the signing of the Greenland agreement even if it leads to a rupture of diplomatic relations with the German-controlled Danish government in Copenhagen, it was learned today.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull will assure the handsome Danish envoy today that this government intends to stand by him and will continue to recognize him as the rightful representative of King Christian and the people of Denmark in spite of the Danish government's action in recalling him for having signed the agreement giving the United States the right to defend Greenland.

The American government's position, authoritative quarters said, is that the Danish government acted under duress in ordering the recall of Kauffmann.

This government feels that so long as Denmark is under German military control, the Copenhagen government cannot exercise its sovereign rights or express its free will. Therefore, any action it takes must be considered in the light of German domination of the country.

On the other hand, this government takes the position that Kauffmann, in signing the agreement, not only acted of his own free will as the representative of the Danish people but also with the approval of the Greenland governors.

American officials attach particular importance to this latter point. Conclusion of the agreement with the United States was not merely a personal act on the part of the Danish envoy, informed quarters pointed out. Before signing the agreement, Kauffmann sought and obtained the approval of the Greenland governors. Therefore, this government feels that the agreement represents the free will of the people of Greenland as expressed through their governors.

It was considered possible that Germany might force the Danish government to break off diplomatic relations with the United States once it becomes apparent to Berlin that the Danish minister does not intend to obey the recall order and that this government will refuse to recognize anyone appointed to replace him.

Hold-Up Victim Drives Bargain With Hold-Up Man.

Resisting a hold-up, Cecil struggled with a gunman in his hotel room. A pistol bullet hit the ceiling and Cecil proposed:

"Look, if you'll let me go, I'll let you go and won't call the police until you're gone."

The bandit accepted.

COCHRAN RITES TUESDAY.

TOLEDO, O. — (AP) — Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Negley D. Cochran, 77, retired Scripps-Howard newspaper executive, and his wife, Nellie. Cochran, editor of the old News-Bee from 1903 to 1911 died yesterday after a long illness. His wife's death Friday followed a stroke.

Fails In Fifth Yearly Attempt To Reach Thurston

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Another failure was reported today by Claude R. Noble, of Detroit, in his fifth annual attempt to communicate with the spirit of the late magician, Howard Thurston, his boyhood friend.

Holding a coin lightly in one hand, Noble knelt at his friend's grave and awaited a manifestation from the dead. Under a pact made in 1932 it had been agreed that a sign of communication would be the removal of an object from the hand of the living party to the pact.

After repeating the Lord's prayer, Noble said:

"Howard, I am here in fulfillment of your pact. If you can manifest yourself to me, do it now."

Nothing happened.

Noble said he would try again next year on the sixth anniversary of the magician's death.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — "I Wanted Wings." Screenplay by Richard Maibaum, Lieut. Beirne Lay, jr., and Sig Herzig. Directed by Mitchell Leisen. Principals: Ray Milland, William Holden, Wayne Morris, Brian Donlevy, Constance Moore, Veronica Lake, Harry Davenport.

* * *

This is the second and biggest of the films dealing with young America's training for the U. S. air force. With a topic of such compelling current interest, the picture might have passed on this basis alone, but it has gone on to rate an "Excellent" for production and entertainment value.

The film opens with a spectacular mock air raid on Los Angeles, moves instantly to a report of what has happened to one of the giant participating bombers—a crash in the desert, a woman found dead in the wreckage. There is a court martial scene, at which Hero Milland admits all blame while Co-Hero Holden exhorts him to tell the truth. The story (Beau Geste style) then is told in flash-back.

Milland is a wealthy socialite. Holden a poor mechanic carrying a torch for a faithless love along with his inferiority complex. Morris an ex-collegiate football player. They have in common a desire for wings. They're put through the training routine (filmed at Randolph, Kelly and March fields with air corps collaboration) and through a plot which has its shortcomings but still is coherent and usually plausible.

Miss Moore, a girl photographer from a magazine, is the romantic interest, and Miss Lake, in sultry, voluptuous trappings, is the poisonous little dame who causes all the trouble. It's her first important role, and it makes her a striking bidder for future assignments.

* * *

* * *

One of the characters in this re-make of a theatrical chestnut exclaims: "Why, the whole thing is nonsense," and another avers that it's "ridiculous." They said it neatly.

Beery is the bandit with his own code of justice who invades the desert homestead and sets to rights the romantic and financial troubles of the people he finds there. These include Barrymore as the cantankerous Uncle Henry, Reagan as the upstanding hero, Miss Day as the unhappy wife of the city slicker, Travers as the mortgage-holder.

MANSFIELD MAN AND ASHLAND GIRL WED

Maple Grove Church, Wayne County, Scene of Formal Wedding of Miss Alice Weltmer and John Gurik, jr.

THE light from many candles cast a soft glow over the altar of Maple Grove church Easter Sunday when at 4 o'clock Miss Alice Weltmer, daughter of Mrs. Hope Weltmer, 209 Maple street, Ashland, became the bride of John Gurik, jr., son of the late John Gurik, sr., of Mansfield.

The bride chose the pretty country church of her childhood for her simple wedding and Rev. H. E. Stout of Damascus, who was a former pastor at the Maple Grove church, returned to read the open church service.

The waxy green of palms and ferns blended into lovely background for the Easter lilies and seven branch candelabra. Nuptial music before and during the ceremony was played by Miss Ruby Walz of Ashland.

White marquisette of floral design was fashioned for the bridal gown which had a sweetheart neckline. The skirt with its soft fullness swept into a brief train over which fell her veil of misty bridal illusion. Her flowers were a colonial bouquet of pastel sweetpeas.

John Weltmer of Shreve, brother of the bride, gave her in marriage. Her attendants were Mrs. Olus Cripe of Jeromesville, who was matron of honor, Miss Betty Deibler of Ashland and Miss Bette Fought of Shreve, bridesmaids. Mrs. Cripe wore a bouffant style formal gown of canary marquisette with full skirt made with circular tiers. The bridesmaids' gowns were similar in Alice blue and the three young women wore flowers in their hair which corrsponded to those in the pastel Colonial bouquets which they carried.

Paul Gurik was best man for his brother and ushers were George Gurik, also a brother, and Robert Morris, brother-in-law of the bridegroom. All three are from Mansfield.

Mrs. Weltmer wore a navy blue and white redingote and a corsage of pink roses.

Following the service a reception was held at the bride's mother's home. Baskets of mixed spring flowers decorated the home. Later the couple left for a trip after which they will live at 209 Maple street, Ashland.

For traveling Mrs. Gurik wore an aqua two-piece suit with beige accessories. She was graduated from Ashland high school and Wooster Business college. She has been employed in the office of the F. E. Myers and Bros. company, Ashland. Mr. Gurik is employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Relatives and friends were in attendance from Ashland, Mansfield, Shreve, Wooster and Loudonville.

Body Odors Worst In Summertime

By MME QUI VIVE

Comes now the season when that most difficult of all beauty subjects must be considered, excessive skin moisture and the unpleasant odors that result from it. It is a subject about which nobody talks certainly not to those who are afflicted, and it is not an easy one about which to write. Thousands of women and girls—men, too, for that matter—carry an aura that offends the public nose. One wants to keep miles away from them.

The skin is an excretory organ, as you all know. If the body is active, doing hard labor, the sweat glands will exude as much as two pints of waste fluids a day. Certain solid substances, like fats and ammonium salts, will be deposited upon the epidermis. As a rule, the daily bath with friction and a heavy brush, fresh undies every day, and the free application of a dusting powder will suffice to keep the skin free of offensive odors. But not always. There are cases that persist despite the most fastidious care. These cases usually have a background of physical disturbances, require the attention and treatment of a medical man.

Nervousness is sometimes responsible. It acts the same as fear, causes the flesh to be moist and cold.

Heavy eaters, though they may not exercise at all, often sweat heavily. Foods that undergo putrefactive changes in the intestinal tract have an unpleasant effect upon the glands, causing them to pour forth their odorous exudations in excess. Specialists who have made surveys say that these individuals should never eat onions or garlic, that they should cut down on proteins of which they usually eat too much, stoke up on vegetables, fruits and green salads.

The most active of all glands are the armpits. If these can be made to ease up their work, many times the trouble is finished. At all cosmetic counters can be found deordorants or deterrents. These come in many forms — pastes, powders, liquids— and chemists have made them better and more effective every year.

Some of these preparations dry the skin slightly so the pores are closed. No danger in that; there are thousands of pores elsewhere on the body to carry on. All these products should be applied exactly according to directions: oftimes only a few drops are necessary to stay the flood of moisture that is constantly present.

Could the Earl of Sandwich Have Stomach Ulcer Pains?

The origin of the sandwich was brought about by the famous Earl of Sandwich who liked to have small snacks of tasty morsels while playing cards. Varying That Sunday Dinner With Stuffing

By BETSY NEWMAN

Some families serve a chicken dinner on Sunday regardless of season, or whenever they have guests. If you are among the Sunday chicken eaters, have you tried roast chicken with a mushroom-potato stuffing recently?

Today's Menu.

Spring Green Salad Radishes
Hot Biscuits or Rolls Olives
Three-in-One Frappe
Cake Coffee

2 cps. mushrooms
2 small onions, chopped
1 egg
1 tsp. poultry seasoning
1 tbsp. minced parsley

Chill milk or cream in bowl in refrigerator or surrounded by chipped ice and salt. Combine grapefruit and orange juice, add sugar and salt and stir thoroughly Let stand in refrigerator 20 minutes to chill and dissolve sugar Whip milk or cream until stiff, add lemon juice and extract and continue whipping until mixture is very stiff. Add sugar juice mixture, folding in lightly but thoroughly. Turn into cold freezing pan and place in refrigerator immediately. Freeze from 2 to 5 hours. Serves six.

Jealousy Discussed By Doctor

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

The average person thinks of jealousy only in relation to persons of the opposite sex. Applied to the child, the term is usually associated solely with the tot on the arrival of a new baby.

But jealousy is a universal trait. To have no jealousy is to be dead. It is the uncomfortable feeling a person has when one or more other people gains attention which he feels he deserves. This feeling is not always directed toward the person in the limelight.

You are at a social gathering when some one you consider on your level, or beneath it, receives strong praise. How do you feel then? How do you act? You may feel dejected. You may feel angered. You may have a mixture of emotions which you can't describe or explain. Because of these feelings you may try to shift the conversation. You may "damn" that person with "faint praise." You may repeat the praise and then follow it with an uncomplimentary remark "Yes, she is wonderful, but isn't it too bad that some one does not help her pick her hats" All the while you may be aware of a warmness in your face or betraying look in your eyes However, you may remain silent, suffering, not even knowing why. This feeling may go with you for hours, even days. Or, it may stir up mean and ugly feelings in you and cause you to be irritable to other persons, even those at home. In one chance out of a thousand, perhaps, you may have acquired the art of rising above such feelings, by doing or saying some kind thing to that person.

Jealousy in Children.

So with the tot of two, the child of eight, the youth of fifteen He, supposing another child, especially in his family—more often than not a younger child—is receiving more love and approval than he is, may have jealous feelings and, consequently, suffer silently, or be explosive or non-social in his conduct. He may also do mean things toward the other child.

When therefore, your child who has a brother or sister grows very stubborn and hard to manage, cries easily, or seems to be very nervous, suspect jealousy. On account of jealousy, there may be sleep problems, eating problems, nailbiting, and thumbsucking.

Often one child will be so stubborn, too, because another in the family is so cooperative, one so disobedient because another is so obedient, one so non-social because another has so many friends and playmates, one so indifferent toward school work because another is so studious, one so slovenly becouse another is so neat, one so boorish because another is so mannerly.

When one child gets more punishments than his brother or sister, he feels sure he is not loved as much. Then he does more bad things and gets still more punishments. This vicious circle is hard to break, of course. The object is to find ways to punish less and approve more and to help the seemingly jealous child to find more satisfactions from achievements in directions in which he can achieve, and feel more loved and worthy in the family group.

I discuss jealousy in "The Modern Parent" and again in my "Marriage and Parenthood." "When Jim and Jean Are Jealous," is the title of a pamphlet of mine. If you would like to receive a folder which lists this and fourteen other pamphlets I have written on the baby and young child, write me in care of this paper enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp o n.

Limes will keep fresh for some time if they are washed, wiped dry and then stored in a covered fruit jar in the refrigerator.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Although I had expected to hear what Ronald was muttering to me, I could not repress a slight shudder at the confirmation of my fears.

"You are sure?" I murmured back, grateful to Dicky, who was "extending himself" in Harry Underwood's parlance, in the story he was telling with extravagant gestures calculated to rouse the risables and rivet the attention of his auditors.

"It couldn't have been anybody else," Ronald said, his tones carefully muted, and his eyes furtively watching the others that he might break off our colloquy abruptly if it became necessary For my part I also watched the others from beneath my lowered lashes while I strained my ears to catch every syllable Ronald was uttering

"I wasn't sure at first," Ronald went on. "He reminded her of a dance at Weirhampton, and talked exactly as a boy would who was trying to get a date."

"That's where she met him, at a sorority dance," I said. "One of the other girls brought him—he probably planned it out before-hand so as to meet—let's call her "F."

"For 'foolish' and 'fool hardy' and worse," Ronald muttered bitterly, and I had to call him back to the main line from which he was switching

"Tell me what he said that I ought to know," I urged him. "The rest can wait."

Freightening News.

"I can't believe it of her," Ronald said in crushed tones. "But she told that man in answer to his questions that you were leaving on the New York train at eighto'clock, and that Uncle Dicky and I were taking her back to Weirhampton early tomorrow morning. He asked the route we would go and she told him the same one you took today

"But he didn't seem so interested in our movements," Ronald went on. "He said she'd hear from him after she got back to school. But he questioned her closely about your going in, wanted her to find out your compartment number if possible, so that when he called again about half past seven, she could give it to him. And he said one queer thing, horrible when I think he was saying it to my little sister—"

"Careful!" I warned beneath my breath, for his voice had risen slightly. "Tell me the rest quickly."

"He said 'That dame knows more than she pretends, and she's going in to find out more. I've found that out tonight.' Doesn't that look as if he'd had a chance to listen in on your telephone? Yet how could he?—"

"Cut!" I muttered abruptly, for I saw Carolyn's eyes glancing our way with not exactly suspicion but definite questioning in them And for the rest of the meal, I forced myself to eat and drink, and to join in the general chatter, although caroming around my brain were two insistent questions:

Why did the gangster wish to know my train compartment number?

How much should I tell Dicky of what I had learned from Ronald?

The second question I put aside for later consideration. I could decide that finally when Dicky should drive me to the train. But I felt that if possible, I must fathom the gangster's purpose, and before the end of the meal, I became obsessed with the terrifying conviction that the man meant to shadow me on my way to the city, and try to get hold of the letter to Ronald from Marion which I was carrying to Mary for her deciphering Madge In Danger.

I knew how ruthless was his kind, and realized that I might be in danger of death or serious injury before my journey should be over. But I acquitted myself of cowardice, and knew that I should go through with the journey, relying on my wits to keep out of the man's way.

But I realized something else, that Dicky must know nothing of what Ronald had told me. He never would let me go alone on the train if he should learn the subject of our colloquy And from what Ronald had said I was sure that the gangster or one of his gang would attempt to get hold of Carolyn on her journey back to Weirhampton

How could I warn Dicky of that danger without betraying my own danger? Under cover of the general chatter, I nudged Ronald and spoke from the side of my mouth, prison fashion, without looking at him

"Delay going back to the living room when dinner is over. I must speak to you."

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, April 15.

Under planetary positions of force and energy this should be a day of initiative and enterprise in which there may be a very direct attack upon new projects as well as static situations. The mind will be keyed to high purpose with quick insight as to the most dynamic methods for putting over important projects, and with personal skill and determination rather than through cooperation of others.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year in which there will be energy, purpose and resolution for pushing important matters to high goals of accomplishment The forces and spirit of initiative will be spurred to direct and dynamic action, with the mentality quickened to grasp most progressive and effective ways and means for attaining cherished ends.

A child born on this day should be bold, audacious and ambitious, with an unconquerable and determined spirit of enterprise This should manifest in a cultural, professional or emotional direction.

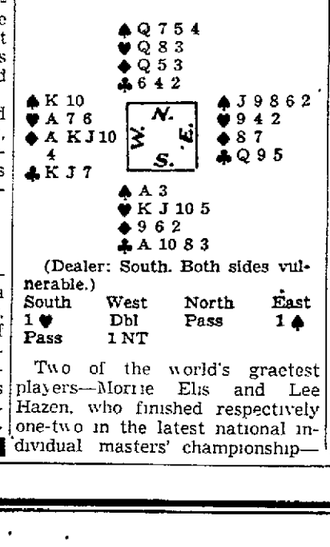
"The Authority on Authorities"

THE DEFENSIVE SQUEEZE

Most players understand the general principles of a squeeze play—ending with the lead of a card on which one or both of the opponents cannot possibly discard without killing one or more tricks winners for his side But it is usually thought of as being executed by the declarer, whereas it also can be used, upon unusual occasions, by the defense. Some of the prettiest and most intricate combinations possible can arise from its execution by the defenders.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Dbl	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	1 NT

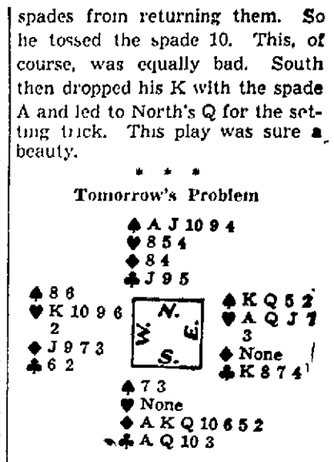
Two of the world's greatest players—Morrie Elis and Lee Hazen, who finished respectively one-two in the latest national individual masters' championship—paired together in the recent Eastern pairs and came within a single bid of winning the title. This deal gave an example of their duplicate artistry. Deciding to pass and play for a vulnerable set against West's 1-No Trump instead of playing for a part score, Mr. Elis in the North led the heart 3 to the K

Working all-out for every possible trick, Mr. Hazen returned the heart 5 to the Q, and the next heart forced West's A He allowed West to hold the next trick with the club J, after which came the diamond K and A and then the J to the Q Mr Hazen having put the club 8 on the club J, Mr. Elis now returned his club 6 to the A, and Mr Hazen laid down the heart 10 That squeezed the life out of West At this stage he had his two spades, two set-up diamonds and club K. East had four spades and the club Q North four spades and the club 4.

West seemed to be sure to take a trick in spades two in diamonds and one in clubs, but the squeeze ruined him. If he threw the club K, East would be put in with the Q and would have to lead back a spade, so South could cash the setting club. If he tossed a diamond, he could be put in with the club K, could then cash one diamond, but would have to lose two spades from returning them. So he tossed the spade 10. This, of course, was equally bad. South then dropped his K with the spade A and led to North's Q for the setting trick. This play was sure a beauty.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable).

If West, after doubling, leads the K of his partner's hearts, how should South play this deal to make 5-Diamonds?

Senators, Yanks Set for Major League Opener Today

Sport Podge by Rex Hess

The long lull in local sports comes to an end this week as football, track and boxing join in a frantic rush for recognition.

This afternoon the Mansfield-Toledo Waite grid tilt is on the griddle at Stadium field, tomorrow many Mansfielders will make the trek to Cleveland for the opening of American league season, Thursday night the fights are on at the armory, Friday will find news and track men coming to town for Saturday's Mansfield Relays.

And Sunday will find this conductor Nervous Rex for sure.

* * *

Duke Weber is one grid fan who is very happy over the afternoon practice games set up this spring by the Mansfield Tygers.

"I never missed a game before last season," says the Duke, "made all the trips and had lots of fun. But those night games last fall didn't fit into my calendar, and I didn't see a game, not even the Massillon tilt."

* * *

All Duke knows about his son Johnny's playing is what he's been told. Today he'll finally see the boy in action. "And I had to wait for spring for this," grins Duke. With this weather he could call it summer. Spring was so short after we waited for it so long.

* * *

Paul Carbetta should get a rousing welcome back to the Mansfield ring Thursday night when he headlines that mitt card at the armory.

He's only won the Cleveland Golden Gloves flyweight title, gone to the finals of the mid-west tournament at Chicago, and the quarter-finals of the national amateur joust at Boston since last he flashed his fists for the edification of the home folks.

* * *

And for the benefit of the home fans, Carbetta is giving up a spot this week on an all star card at Cleveland featuring Plain Dealer Golden Gloves champs against a squad of Hawaiian leather tossers.

Mansfielders, I'm thinking, should give the little fellow a big hand

* * *

"We'll reach that 70 mark yet," beamed Harry Mehock this morning as he opened his weekend mail and discovered seven more entries for Saturday's Relays, bringing the present total to 33 schools.

* * *

Kentucky's first entry for the Relays was included in the latest batch, that of Newport, Ky.

Also in the new list was the Relays favorite, Cleveland East, and one of the chief contenders, Cleveland East Tech.

Cathedral Latin and Cleveland Central are lined up for Mansfield's biggest sport event, along with Toledo Scott and Akron South, and the next couple days should see a flood of last-minute entries.

The Akron team also sent B. Bosco and C. Potter into second place in the doubles, nine pins back of R. F. Merrill and C. Carter of Columbus with 1299. Potter placed third in the all-events with 1965.

Peck Gives Indians No Rest Time

Final Workout Scheduled For Tribe at Stadium.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— The travel-weary Cleveland Indians came home today to await their Tuesday opener with Chicago, but they had little time to rest.

* * *

Immediately after a luncheon honoring the team, Manager Roger Peckinpaugh ordered the athletes to Municipal stadium for a workout.

* * *

Most of the athletes went to temporary quarters as the schedule calls for the club to move to Detroit Thursday night. The team begins its first extended home stand April 26.

The weather man was the only person in the city getting more attention than the Redskins. He forecast "cooler and showers" for tomorrow.

Club officials predicted 35,000 would see the opener and Mayor Edward Blythin, who says he has never thrown a baseball, began warming up in his office to get in shape for the first pitch.

The Indians wound up their exhibition program in New York yesterday by battling the Giants to a 4-to-4 tie in a 12-inning game halted by darkness. The result gave Cleveland nine victories, three defeats and a tie in the annual spring series with the National leaguers. The Tribe won 19 and lost 11 in the entire spring schedule.

* * *

The Giants got seven hits and all their runs off Jim Bagby, who hurled the first six innings. Al Smith gave up three singles the rest of the way.

* * *

The Indians scored once in the fourth on Lou Boudreau's double and Gerry Walker's single and three times in the ninth. Walker started the late uprising with a single and Beau Bell drove a home run into the right field stands. Singles by Ray Mack and Roy Weatherly coupled with a walk and a fielder's choice added the final tally.

Feller will pitch tomorrow against Bill Dietrich, with Al Milnar slated to start Wednesday.

Alexander Needs Help

Old Pete Won't See Opener This Year.

By HARRY FERGUSON

NEW YORK —(U P)— The baseball season starts here tomorrow and among those who won't see the opener is Grover Cleveland Alexander.

Old Pete hasn't got the price of a bleacher seat these days and he never was much on going around cadging passes.

* * *

At the moment his assets consist of a plaque in baseball's hall of fame at Cooperstown, N. Y., but that's not the kind of thing you take around the corner and swap for bread and shelter.

* * *

You probably know what happened to him after he lost his last big league job He went with a House of David team for a while, pitching a couple of innings each day around the tank town circuit and earning enough money to buy the things he needed and some things he didn't need

The sinew and muscle in a pitching arm won't last forever, and there came a time when old Pete couldn't even go two innings against the semi-pros

* * *

He got sick and the doctors told him he would have to quit work and go to a hospital. More or less by accident, some of his friends found out about it and began collecting money to give him a lift across hard times.

* * *

Now he is out of the hospital, still weak and not quite ready to go back to work. The bills are not knee deep but there are plenty of them

Old Pete didn't ask me to do anything about it and I'm not urging you to do anything about it, but if a dime or a dollar is burning a hole in your pocket, the man to send it to is Dan Parker, the Daily Mirror, New York City.

Queens Claim Sport Share

11 Women Prepare 15 Colts For Derby.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. —(NS)— Horse-racing is no longer just the sports of kings—nowadays it's the sport of kings and queens.

A search of records bearing the names of 112 horses entered in the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs May 3 shows that at least 11 women have subscribed a total of 15 horses to the mile and a quarter spin for $75,000 added.

Because of her sparkling Derby victory with Gallahadion last year, Mrs. Ethel V. Mars perhaps should head the queenly list. She has entered Supreme Deal and Man About Town this year, and, considering how Galladhadion came from nowhere to defeat Bimelech, the hottest thing in existence until then, one or both of these colts may surprise the anticipated 100,000 fans.

Mrs. H. C Phipps, owner of the Wheatley stables, should come next, and this year has a swell chance of scoring with Bold Irishman, son of Sir Gallahad III-Erin. She also has Irish Day in the lineup.

Other turf queens are Mrs. S. T. Baxter, with Isalot down for the Blue Grass classic; Mrs. Parker Corning, with Attention; Ruth W. Collins, with Olena; Vera S. Bragg, with Roman Governor; Mrs. P. Whitney, with Monday Lunch, Swing and Sway and The Rhymer; Mrs. W. M Jeffords, with Sailor King; Mrs. E Graham, with Magnificent, Mrs. A Pelleteri, with Bull Reigh and Mrs. F. J. Nawin, with Quintilian.

Derringer Named as Red Choice

World Champions Meet Cards In Opener.

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Maestro Bill McKechnie gave his Cincinnati Reds their final tuning up today and they're ready to harmonize on that world-champion chord when the St. Louis Cardinals come to Crosley Field tomorrow

* * *

Paul Derringer, big right-hander, has been made by everyone but McKechnie as mound choice against St. Louis' Lon Warneke. Derringer, out for three weeks when he stopped a batted ball with his groin, demonstrated Thursday in beating Boston that he has recovered.

* * *

Bucky Walters' two-week shelving with a leg injury possibly contributed to a slight wildness as he beat the Detroit Tigers 16-4 yesterday, but he had stuff and also lashed out two doubles and a single.

Ernie Lombardi's injured ankle carried him from second on Jimmy Ripple's fourth inning single; and Outfielder Ival Goodman, kept from play until last week with a bad arm, broke a chain of 11 hitless trips to the plate by a pinchhit single.

In banging out 20 hits, playing errorless ball and chalking up three double killings, the Reds supported their contention that they're a "hot weather" club—the mercury was just a shade under 90.

Winning their 18th victory in 32 exhibition starts, the Reds chased Schoolboy Rowe from the mound in the fifth after 11 hits.

* * *

The Reds were helped to six doubles by a ground rule resulting from the placing of 4,500 extra seats in anticipation of an opening day crowd expected to reach 35,000 if weather, forecast as "cloudy," doesn't interfere.

Easter's exhibitioner became a rout in the last half of the fourth with the score 2-2, the Reds batted around, scoring five times on four hits and two walks. "Dizzy" Trout took over in the fifth, but the Reds' run-total continued to bounce up Johnny Vander Meer held the Tigers scoreless in the last two frames.

Gordon Returns to Second Base for Yanks After Injury to Priddy

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The nation's capital turned from gloomy thoughts of world conflict today to the opening game of the major league baseball season, in which the New York Yankees and the Washington Senators get a 24-hour jump on the field.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt, a veteran who has been around here since 1933, was billed to pitch out the first ball before 32,000 fans in Griffith Stadium around 3 p. m. (EST).

The weather man said it would be cloudy and warm.

Manager Joe McCarthy, trying to get his revamped Yankees back on the championship trail, named Southpaw Marius Russo as his starting pitcher. Russo won 14 and lost 8 last year. For Manager Bucky Harris and Washington it was Dutch Leonard, who won 14 and lost 19.

* * *

Jerry Priddy, New York second baseman and one of three highly-rated rookies up from Kansas City, was forced out of action three days ago with an ankle injury.

* * *

McCarthy may have to reassign Joe Gordon to the keystone sack for a short time This will give Johnny Sturm, also with Kansas City last year, a chance to fill in for Gordon at first. Phil Rizzuto, third of the Kansas City contingent, will be making his debut in regular big league competition at shortstop.

Joe DiMaggio, Charlie Keller, Buddy Rosar, Tommy Henrich and other Yankee mainstays were ready for the campaign.

Reds and Yankees Favored

Doyle Lists Odds For Major League Races.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— The world champion Cincinnati Reds and the rebuilt New York Yankees were made betting favorites in the major league pennant races today by Jack Doyle, oracle of Broadway who has been making the official baseball prices for the past 30 years.

* * *

Five will get you seven if you think the Yanks will win, but five will get you only six if you like the Reds to win their third straight pennant.

* * *

Waiting until the day before the season's grand opening to announce his prices, Doyle emphasized that the 1941 pennant races were fraught with more uncertainties, doubts and question marks than any in his memory.

"I waited until the last possible minute to announce my prices," said Doyle. "I even considered not quoting any prices this year. First, who knows how hard the draft is going to hit baseball. Before the year's out we may see some of our leading stars in the army camps with a rifle on their shoulder instead of a bat.

"Hugh Mulcahy already has gone. Buddy Lewis is due to go in a month and Hank Greenberg in June. What if Feller had to go? His loss would just about wreck the Indians. I don't think any single fellow can count himself safe. The current is moving too swiftly.

* * *

"Another important angle there's not a real standout club in either league. Of course, the Reds have a great pitching staff but you couldn't call them a great club beyond that."

* * *

Doyle stressed that his opening line is subject to change on a day's notice and that the odds may shift quickly as soon as the public starts betting.

"After all it's the public that makes the price," he said.

In making the Yanks favorites Doyle admitted that he originally had the Indians co-favorites but shifted at the last minute, dropping Cleveland to 3-2. Thus the Yanks are 14-10 and the Indians 15-10. The Tigers are third choices at 4-1.

"The Yanks have plenty of question marks," Doyle said. "Priddy and Rizzuto have to prove they are as good as they are touted, Dickey has to stage a comeback and the young pitchers have to come around.

* * *

"Cleveland has the pitching. I figure Feller, Milnar and Harder good for 50 to 55 games. That's quite a start toward a pennant. I place Boudreau at short on a pedestal but I am not so sure about Mack. The Indians could use more hitting.

* * *

"Everything depends on Greenberg with the Tigers. If he goes to the army, you can count Detroit out of it. However, they have power and they may be old but they're smart. The Red Sox are the same as always. They have the punch but their pitching is a scrambled affair."

In the National league the Dodgers are quoted as second choice behind the Reds at 9-5. The Cardinals are third choice at 4-1 and the Cubs and Pirates next, at 8-1.

"I give the Reds top spot because they've won two pennants and have solid pitching," said Doyle. "Walters, Derringer and Thompson are good for 55 games, maybe 60. Their pitching is good beyond their big three, too. I must take McKechnie's word that Joost can handle shortstop. I expect Gleeson, an under-rated ball player, to help too.

"Brooklyn is a dangerous threat but I am not so sold in Higbe. He's got to prove to me he can win for a pennant contender. And Medwick still is a question mark. When the Cards dump a ball player, they seldom amount to much. The Cards are an unknown quantity but they have possibilities and they have the punch. The Pirates lack the pitching. The Cubs might be better than rated. I can't see the Giants as they are set up now."

Eagles retained first place in five-man event of the city tournament over the week-end, the doubles team of France and Frost also clung to its top rating, and France is still out in front in all events.

* * *

But the remainder of first ten rankings in the kegling joust was well scrambled Saturday night and Sunday.

* * *

Dominion Electric went into second place in five-man with 2994, and Ritz Nite club took fourth with 2949.

Six doubles teams moved up back of France and Frost to drop the second place duo of Malaska and Stevens to seventh, while McDermid and Vaughn, third a week ago, are now tenth.

* * *

L. Hartzell moved into first place in singles with 686, followed by Hazlett, 660, Gump 626, and G. Lanning sr., 626. A. Cosenza, first last week, dropped to fifth place.

E. Dunn with 1835, and Art Hilborn, 1833, moved into second and third positions in the all-events.

Chicagoan Sets Record For ABC

ST. PAUL, Minn.—(U.P.)—Herb Lange of Chicago today became the first entrant in American Bowling Congress history to roll a 1900-series five times in all events.

* * *

Lange bowled 653 with the Chapin and Gore team of Chicago, then scored 624 in doubles and 630 in singles for a nine-game total of 1907 in the week-end's performance. He made 1943 in 1922, 1950 in 1923, 1901 in 1934, and 1910 in 1937.

* * *

William (Deacon) Kenet and Joe Bodis, Cleveland, moved into second place in two-man standings, with Kenet adding 687 to Bodis' 626 for a total of 1313. Kenet also gained eighth place in all-events with 1929.

LORAIN MARKSMAN WINS DEWAR SHOOT

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Stan Groomes of Grove City, O., and E. M. Rader of Lorain, O., won the two individual events closing Cleveland's first indoor Dewar shooting tournament over the week-end.

Groomes scored 400 x 400-27x in the 20 shots at 50 yards and 20 at 100 with metal sights and Rader 400 x 400-36x in the same class without sight restrictions.

Sets New Mark

Taggart and Moreland.

In winning the Thomas D. Taggart trophy at French Lick Springs, Ind., Gus Moreland of Peoria, Ill., set a new record for the golf tourney, carding 215 for 54 holes. Moreland, shown right, with Haggart, outstroked 490 amateur competitors to cop the 10-year-old event.

Junior Loop Has Margin

Yankees Top Training Schedule on 25 Wins.

(By Associated Press)

WHILE they still pay off on the regular season games, results of 1941 competition in the "Grapefruit" league point to an American league year.

* * *

There wasn't any all-star game in the south this spring, so the only test of power lay in the two Major circuits. American league clubs won 70 of these to earn a clear margin over the older loop.

* * *

The slugging New York Yankees topped the spring standing with a record of 25 victories and nine defeats. They won 10 and lost eight against National league clubs. Following them came the Washington Senators (17-7) and the St. Louis Browns (18-8). Washington lost seven of its 12 inter-league games but made up at the expense of other American league clubs. The Browns won 10 and lost seven games against National leaguers for a record that was second only to the Philadelphia Athletics' 12 wins and seven losses.

* * *

The only notable exception was recorded by the Detroit Tigers, last year's American league champs. They won four of seven inter-league games, breaking even in four games with their world-series conquerors, the Cincinnati Reds.

* * *

But a dismal record against American and Minor league rivals put them at the bottom of the heap with nine games won and 16 lost.

The standings:

Club	W.	L.
Yankees	25	9
Senators	17	7
Browns	18	8
Dodgers	24	12
Indians	19	11
Athletics	22	13
Cardinals	21	14
Reds	18	14
Bees	14	11
Cubs	15	12
Red Sox	17	14
Phillies	14	13
Giants	15	16

The catch limit this year is six (rainbow, brook or brown) and the minimum length seven inches. The season ends Sept. 15.

Rising Velocity Of Earthquake Waves Charted

HARVARD, Mass.—(U.P.)—Dr. L. Don Leet, director of the Harvard Seismograph Station, reports new velocity measurements of earthquake waves that change present theories of underground conditions.

Using a new sensitive seismograph, he conducted a study of 50 earthquakes occurring in New England and vicinity during the past six years.

Dr. Leet found a new high velocity for waves traveling in the upper layer of the so-called "mantle" of the earth, some 21 miles beneath the surface. His measurements showed "push" waves, a form importing a back-and-forth motion, travel at 5.2 miles a second. The previously accepted velocity was 4.8 miles a second.

As part of the study he was able to map, for the first time, the earth's surface layers in the New England area. The top layer, he found, is dominately granitic and stretches down nine miles. A second layer composed of heavier minerals, probably basaltic, is six miles thick. A third layer, of undetermined composition, is six miles thick.

STOCK MARKET DRIFTS LOWER ON WAR NEWS

Insurance Applications on Small Homes Set Record For Single Week.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market went into an irregularly lower drift today as further bearish implications were seen in the foreign news.

Getting into new low ground for the year were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Telephone, General Motors and Chrysler.

Bonds and commodities were uneven.

Market students scanned the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that, while selling of steel into the first quarter of next year had already begun, such sales "were more theoretical than actual or practical" and that in some cases branch offices were merely filing away these orders and not turning them in to headquarters.

The federal housing administration disclosed that, in the face of rising building costs, small home insurance applications during the week ended April 5 established a new record.

BRITISH REFUGEE CHILDREN JOIN IN CAPITAL EGG HUNT

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — One hundred and thirty-two British refugee children, who are not accustomed to take the Easter bunny as seriously as do American youngsters, converged on the White House today to find out first hand about a special American custom — the Easter egg roll.

These refugees, ages 6 to 16 who are living in Washington and nearby Maryland and Virginia towns, were invited by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt to the traditional children's party at which thousands of youngsters annually frolic on the spacious White House lawn.

Good weather was forecast and gloomy gardeners, with a last look at the newly green grass, anticipated a record attendance of egg rollers. The largest gate count for the Easter party was in 1939 when 53,100 children and their adult companions attended.

Custom has it that the White House gates swing open at 9 a. m. to children under ten years of age. The rules say: "No adults admitted unless accompanied by children." But sharp-eyed grown-ups have been known to find an escort for hire at the price of an ice cream cone.

Mrs. Henry Wallace, wife of the vice president, arranged to officiate as hostess in Mrs. Roosevelt's stead today. The first lady had left for Los Angeles to see her son, Capt. James Roosevelt, married to Romelle Schneider, who nursed him through a serious illness.

Union Demands Men Pay Up or Be Discharged.

HAMILTON —(AP)— Approximately 80 men went on strike at the Hamilton Caster and Manufacturing company's plant today in what a union spokesman said was a demand that certain employes be discharged unless they paid union dues.

The firm, booked heavily with defense orders, manufactures small factory hand-trucks and suspended operations pending conferences with R. J. Lippert, vice president, said would be held as soon as possible.

Joseph Carpenter, head of the CIO union involved, said that two months ago a walkout ended when the company signed a closed shop agreement.

STUDY FOOD STAMP PLAN

County and City Officials Meet To Confer on New Relief Proposal.

government's stamp plan, told the group today that Mansfield and Richland county grocers will receive $40,000 more annually under the food stamp plan. That amount of food was distributed to clients by the government last year in the county.

The city and county will be required to provide a revolving fund to put the stamp plan in motion. The money will be used to purchase booklets of food stamps which will be distributed to relief families on the basis of their needs. The stamps would be redeemable at any county grocery store for food articles to be consumed off the premises.

The stamps, Walsh explained, would not be good for liquor and other articles not considered necessary food. The booklets will contain stamps marked for a total of $4, but they will actually be worth $6, or 50 per cent more than their face value, he said.

The additional amount will represent surplus commodities available to relief clients. Grocers can redeem the stamps at banks or at the federal commodities office in Cleveland.

Walsh pointed out that the program, which must be administered by the county commissioners, can be made available to WPA workers, old age pensioners, persons receiving blind relief, and others dependent upon welfare agencies.

DEFENSE PROGRAM SPURS NEW DEVELOPMENTS IN METAL WORLD

CLEVELAND, O. — (INS) — The national defense program has proved a great stimulus to the world of metals during the last few months, according to W. H. Eisenman, Secretary of the American Society for Metals.

"Defense needs," said Eisenman, "differ only in detail from the products and processes of private industry. The basic needs in each case are the same: stronger, better metals and new economies of production.

New alloys have eben developed and put to the test, the metals expert explained. As a result, airplanes and engines are stronger, faster and more powerful because of alloys, and improved production methods make for the building of greater numbers of improved airplanes.

Regarding the possibility of the United States being cut off from its supplies of metals, the Society secretary pointed out that virtually all the metals the United States needs in its defense program either exist in suitable quantities in the western hemisphere or can be replaced by satisfactory substitutes available domestically.

"Iron and steel are the bone and sinew of the defense program and of our modern industrial world," he declared. "Alloy steels are undergoing constant improvement. The atmosphere of gas surrounding steel being processed is controlled more closely than ever before to insure exactly the right content and distribution of carbon.

"Stainless steel is coming into use to a larger extent in the fabrication of aircraft. It is heavier than the aluminum alloys, but stronger. Neither metal appears likely to supplant the other on a large scale, but both are finding increased use in the defense program and the expansion of commercial aviation."

RENO MARRIAGE CITY NOW AS DIVORCES TAKE SHARP DROP

RENO, Nev.—(AP)—Reno completed 1940 in fine fettle, oldtimers said, pointing to the fact that marriages exceeded divorces by 2 to 1.

The night club business slumped but the sale of wedding rings skyrocketed.

Gone are the days when 128 divorces were granted in one day. The average now is about eight, with daily marriages averaging around 72.

Judges were busy marrying people instead of divorcing them because of the California three-day waiting period between getting the license and being married, the new California medical examination law, and the selective service act.

But the marriage business is not what has given Reno its "lines" in plays and movies as the world's divorce capital. The marriages are chiefly of California couples, just young people, not "big names," not in the social register.

During the year there moved through the Reno divorce court some 1,250 dissatisfied husbands and wives when downstairs in the marriage bureau, there were more than 1,850 couples (3,700 persons and Reno's population is only 21,000) who took the oath of allegiance to home and fireside.

Foremost among the dissatisfied were Mary Elizabeth (Lizz) Whitney, who divorced John Hay Whitney, multi-millionaire sportsman; Constance Bennett of the movies, who divorced the Marquis Henry de la Falaise de la Coudray and knit socks without a heel while in Reno; Priscilla St. George Duke, the blonde with the hazel eyes, who lived on a ranch and rode horses.

The denouement of this trio was the marriage of Mrs. Duke's husband, Angier Biddle Duke, 28, tobacco heir and nephew of Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, to Mrs. Margaret Screven Tuck former wife of Alexander J. M. Tuck of New York's social register, immediately after Mrs. Tuck's divorce.

Reno divorces usually end in another marriage.

Now Reno's divorce business, because other states have adopted Nevada's lead in easy divorce laws, is apparently ending in many marriages.

The county clerk and the judges smile. Each marriage brings a $2 fee to the county, a fee from $2 to $100 to the marrying judge.

Scientists Seek New Methods to Fight Leukemia

SACRAMENTO, Cal. — (INS) — Phosphorescent "tracer bullets" fired into blood cells are the latest tools developed by University of California scientists in their attempt to solve the cause of Leukemia.

Leukemia is the feared disease of the blood in which the white corpuscles become predominate and the red cells are avariciously eaten up by the beserk leucocytes. It is the disease peculiar to the former rulers of Spain.

Using radioactive materials transmuted by California University's atom smasher, the researchers are tracing the action of white corpuscles affected by Leukemia in the bodies of mice.

Scientists have already discovered leukemia cells have a higher phosphorous metabolism than normal ones.

GERMANS CRASH INTO EGYPT IN DRIVE ON SUEZ

Skirt Around British Forces at Tobruk; Claim Slav Resistance Ends.

A U-boat sank a British auxiliary cruiser of about 10,000 tons off Iceland, the high command added.

Two German patrol boats were said to have downed two of six British planes on the North Sea coast and badly damaged another.

No British planes raided German territory last night, the communique said.

Occupation of the Yugoslav capital of Belgrade by German panzer forces yesterday morning, just a week after the opening of hostilities against Yugoslavia and Greece, was announced in a special Easter communique of the high command.

The regular daily war bulletin reported the sinking of 15 British ships totaling 75,922 tons in the Atlantic.

The Luftwaffe was credited with Easter bombings of Britain's Malta airports and Sarajevo, vital junction on the narrow gauge Yugoslav rail line from central Serbia to Dubrovnik on the Dalmatian coast.

DNB, official German news agency, said good weather enabled the pilots to pick out for the latter attack a military camp between the railroad station and the city proper, causing "great damage."

DNB reported, too, that considerable damage was done to runways and parked planes at the Malta airports of La Venezia and Luca, and that a direct bomb hit was scored on the stern of a British destroyer.

Panzer units rolled into Belgrade after small groups of storm troopers hoisted the swastika. The capital, heavily bombed, had been abandoned by its government.

The German advance in the Zagreb area, center of Croatia to the north, was reported continuing "on schedule" and 22 generals, 200 other officers, 12,000 men, and an "unestimated mass" of war material were reported captured there.

The high command said Ljubljana, capital of Slovenia, had fallen to Italian forces driving around the head of the Adriatic Sea.

Hungarian troops were reported to have broken through Yugoslavia's northern border fortifications.

Commenting on the Balkan situation, the authoritative commentary Diemst Aus Duetschland declared "it is now certain in Berlin that the Serb army will be forced to capitulate," and added:

"The air bombardments of Greek harbors undoubtedly are intended to open a southern offensive and to hit at facilities for reinforcement and ways of retreat in middle and southern Greece."

FOUR KILLED IN SING SING BREAK

Two Fugitives Caught Few Hours After Escape From Prison.

yards through a tunnel leading outside the prison, and slew an Ossining policeman in a running gun fight.

The dead:

John Hartye, prison guard.

John Waters, 30, alias Tom Higgins, serving a 10-to-30-year term for armed robbery.

James Fagan, 36, Ossining policeman.

First action occurred on the prison hospital's ward third floor, where the prisoners shot one of the building's two keepers and locked the other in a sub-basement.

The slain guard was Hartye and the other Matteo De Simone. Neither was armed.

Although this took place at about 3 a. m., it was not until half an hour later that the big prison siren began wailing, for the guards only reported to their chief by telephone every half hour.

None of the hospital patients made any outcry audible to other prison officials.

How the trio obtained the guns was not explained by prison authorities, who gave this version of the break:

Riordan and Waters, hospital patients, and McGale, a trusty, shot Hartye without warning.

They then seized De Simone, carried him to a sub-basement and locked him in a room.

Equipped with prison keys, the convicts next unlocked two steel doors and a wooden door of a service tunnel leading to a railroad siding outside the walls.

Half an hour later, when Sergeant of Guards Maynard Darrow did not get his regular telephoned report from the keepers, he investigated and found Hartye dying.

Charles Rohr, jr., a shad fisherman, reported that two men had commandeered his boat and forced him to row them across the river saying "We just killed a cop."

Fresh troops, including additional Greek reservists, were being sped to threatened positions while allied patrols clashed at several points with armored scouting forces from the Nazi ranks.

The Germans, reports from the front said, still were preoccupied with mopping up Yugoslav forces fighting in a wide area at their rear, meanwhile bringing up reinforcements for the offensive into Greece.

BEAT OFFICER

Five Flee After Attack on Highway Patrolman.

GEORGETOWN, O.—(AP)—Five men halted for investigation after thefts of gasoline within the Roosevelt game preserve attacked State Highway Patrolman H. V. Wilson today, disarmed him and fled in his cruiser but two were captured an hour later.

Patrolman Carl Whipple said a posse including "12 or 15 highway patrol cars" and residents of the countryside were seeking the other three.

One of the two men in custody was armed, Whipple said, listing them as Joseph Crawford, 20, and Ray Meyer, 23.

Wilson came upon the quintet shortly after a caretaker at the Roosevelt preserve, west of Portsmouth, found them taking gasoline from a truck. Wilson had "lined them up" at the roadside, when they turned on him.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, APRIL 14, 1941.

After all, few things are more difficult than to steadfastly maintain a position of unneutral neutrality.

It was Shakespeare who thought to remark: "Past and to come seems best; things present worst"—as you also may have noticed.

Reminder: Marshal Petain said, after France fell: "Our spirit of enjoyment was stronger than our spirit of sacrifice. We wanted to have more than we wanted to give. We tried to spare effort and met disaster."

Total Wants Should Be Known

AN APPARENT cause of much of the trouble in the United States has been an inclination of various groups to consider only their own interests rather than to set these up as a part of the whole national program.

What is needed, and what does not yet seem to have been attempted, is a complete survey of the nation's wants, with figures based on individual estimates, so that there may be some idea of the total monetary outlay required to carry through the program.

That phase of the inquiry, for instance, might have to do with tabulating the wages of organized labor members on a basis that would satisfy all workers and their leaders.

Then there would be the non-union workers, mercantile, clerical, agricultural and general service employes, to be provided for at their own estimates of the value of their work.

Business and industrial management, those engaged in the professions, and all persons performing any necessary work, including teachers, nurses and everyone in public or private employment of any kind, should also enter into the total at their own evaluation of the worth of their services and costs of living to their liking.

Added to the total requirement for payment of production and service workers would be the amount needed to pay pensions to all other persons, under some such plan at that proposed several years ago by Dr. Townsend, but elaborated to provide each individual with whatever he might want.

In the matter of housing, too, there has been little consideration of the problem as a whole, and federal projects along this line have failed to attain a scope that will quickly assure every family in the United States having a home to its liking. Many cities, towns and rural communities also lack facilities and conveniences they want.

If a comprehensive appraisal is made of all the wants of all the people in this country, so that the total becomes known, a more intelligent approach can be made to solution of present domestic problems. All that need be done will be to increase prices and taxes sufficiently to pay the entire bill.

Views of a Mansfield Worker

A MANSFIELD industrial worker who has been studying conditions in this country, and who has also read considerably about what has been happening abroad, is quite disturbed over what he regards as a dangerous situation.

"Outside men in our city," he says, "have been inciting dissatisfaction among factory workers and wage earners. These outsiders get men organized and then it is fairly easy to make a few of them think they are being imposed on by their employers.

"Workers do not have to be told that they are not getting enough wages, but it seems there will have to be a top somewhere or they will find themselves in Germany's position of a few years back, where it will take a basket full of dollars to buy a loaf of bread or a pound of butter.

"Strikes and dissatisfaction among the workers who produce the wealth will not provide food and shelter for the women and children of the country. Unless working men wake up to this fact they may find that a thousand dollars will not buy a bushel of potatoes — for there may be no potatoes to buy.

"If all the farmers would organize and strike at one time farm production would stop and there would be no food supply. If all the factory workers would stop at one time there would be no money to pay for farm products. When employes of one or two factories strike, competitors get the business and the strikers and their dependents get the want and misery.

"Labor can bankrupt a company by demanding and getting everything asked for and by waste of time and material. Labor elected Roosevelt president because he had the reputation of doing more for labor than any other man. Now they are working against him by tying up and destroying their own wealth and morale. An honest day's work never killed anyone."

As an expression of the thoughtful conclusions of a Mansfield man who has been engaged in industrial employment for a number of years, the above views are presented as meriting consideration.

47 Words and 6,500 Books

TODAY marks the seventy-sixth anniversary of the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, the man whose humble origin and great achievements brought him closer to the hearts of people than any other American.

A revealing incident typical of Lincoln's inclination toward self-effacement is found in the 47-word summary which he prepared in 1858 for the Dictionary of Congress. It follows:

"Born February 12, 1809, in Hardin county, Ky. Pol. occupation, Profession a lawyer. Has been a captain of volunteers in Black Hawk war. Postmaster at a very small office. Four times a member of the Illinois legislature, and was a member of the lower house of congress."

In contrast with this brief statement is the fact that biographers have since written 6,500 complete books and booklets about Lincoln. Authority for this is Dr. L. A. Warren, director of the Lincoln National Life Insurance company's Lincoln museum in Ft. Wayne, Ind., who adds: "More has been written about Lincoln than about any other person who ever lived—Biblical characters excepted."

And it was only through "the American way of life," with its encouragement of individual initiative, that Lincoln's advancement to the presidency was made possible.

One woman, at the age of 106, says she has lived so long because she worked hard—but the formula is unlikely to gain popularity.

The British have thus far withstood the temptation to fly over Rome and "do as Nazis do."

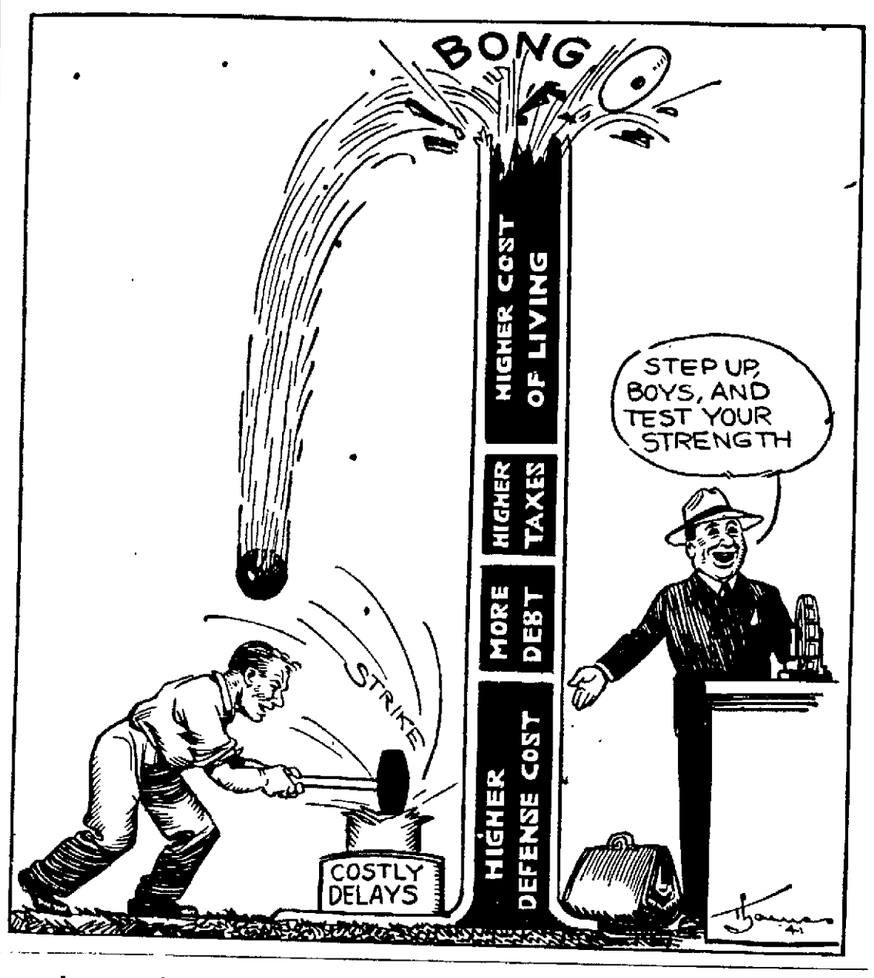
WE LIVE, BUT DO WE LEARN?



'When' Has Become Big Question

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—How soon will we be "in the war"? That is the big question now in Washington. No longer "if," but "when." All this of course is unofficial. Officially the administration still keeps up the old pretense that it can keep out of it, though this, as one will notice even from the language of the president's speeches, has been growing milder and milder.

War economy is almost upon us. Price control is just around the corner. There will be an official announcement looking to the first steps in this direction within the next few weeks. As pointed out in a recent dispatch, the 113 ships now plying between Atlantic and Pacific ports, via the Panama Canal, will shortly be diverted to transoceanic service—may be given outright to Britain.

Another certainty for the near future is the shipment of supplies across the Pacific and beyond, either via the Red Sea and Suez or to Euphrates ports, with the ultimate destination, of course, either Greece or the British forces in Africa. This will take a lot of ships. It's a long round trip, and so takes a lot of bottoms to handle any given quantity of cargo as compared with trans-Atlantic service.

* * *

VERY soon now we will be releasing more small naval craft to Britain. As one looks back at the hue and cry raised on Capitol Hill about those small torpedo craft, which resulted in an order that they should not be turned over to the British, there is a semi-comic touch. It will be remembered that these little vessels were built on British blueprints. There never was any intention to use them for the U. S. navy until congress raised a fog about it.

Incidentally the boats were equipped with 18-inch torpedo tubes. Our naval experts don't like 18-inch torpedoes. We use 21-inch projectiles. We didn't have any torpedoes to fit these boats, and did not intend to have any.

So now that the smoke has cleared away these boats will probably be turned over to the British, and this time there may be some speeches by such senators as David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, and Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, but it won't mean very much.

Britain needs these small craft, ideal for chasing submarines, very badly. So she will get them and others besides this batch which was actually intended for her all the time.

* * *

OBVIOUSLY little boats which can destroy submarines are ideal for convoys, a few of them being much better than a battleship. This is especially true because a battleship is such an important item in war that too much pains has to be taken to protect it. Britain has plenty of battleships anyway, up to date. What she lacks are destroyers and other small craft to protect convoys.

The greatest need of all is bottoms to get the supplies through. Every time a little submarine chaser succeeds in eliminating one of these Nazi menaces it saves freighters from that moment on until the end of the war. Not only that, but everytime a submarine fails to return to its base it has a certain effect on the morale of other U-boat crews.

But it is a mistake to think that the submarines were beaten in the last World war. They were not. Sinkings were terrific in the summer of 1918, and in the first few days of November, just before the armistice, had reached a point that caused great anxiety.

Health and Diet

Fallacies Regarding Heart Defects

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A WOMAN came weeping to me the other day because she had been told her son had a heart murmur. I don't know how many people I have had to calm down because some doctor or life insurance examiner had told them they had a large heart or enlargement of the heart. Then there is the host of people who lead ten or twenty years of tragic life because they hear they have valvular disease of the heart.

These things really mean very little. A valvular defect is merely a mechanical derangement in a mechanical organ. A murmur is the outward and visible sign of it. Enlargement of the heart is the compensation Nature makes to overcome the mechanical derangement.

The important thing to know about the heart is whether it is doing its work. It is a muscular organ and a muscle is intended and designed by Nature to do work. It is, true enough, the hardest worked muscle in the body. But if it does its work, which is to keep the blood circulating, other things about it are of minor significance.

Valvular Defect.

Of course a valvular defect if real and persistent (many of the ones that are so diagnosed are neither real nor persistent) adds to the work of the heart, puts an extra strain on the heart muscle and tends to wear it out sooner than normal.

But not necessarily much sooner! The weeping mother who had discovered her boy had a murmur can take heart from a news clipping one of my colleagues brought me the other day. It was from an obituary column in a medical journal (therefore somewhat more reliable on technical points than the ordinary) and recorded the death of a doctor from valvular (mitral) disease. He died at the age of 92. That's a long time to carry so dangerous a thing as a murmur.

A doctor in Toronto whose wards I was visiting asked me how many children I thought a woman with mitral valvular disease could be allowed to have safely without damaging her heart muscle. I allowed four. He said "Step this way"—and took me into a room where a patient of his with mitral defect had just had her 13th child.

Enlarged Heart.

Saying that a person has an enlarged heart is just saying that the body reactions are normal. We all have enlarged hearts sooner or later. When a fellow's blood pressure rises as time goes on (and it does in three out of every five people) if his heart doesn't enlarge he just isn't. It's the enlargement of the heart that keeps him alive.

It's like saying to an engineer on a locomotive that is carrying a train up a mountain—"Why you have enlargement of your locomotive." Of course he has if the locomotive is going to get the train up the hill. But when the locomotive large or small is no longer able to move the cars up the slope, then the engineer is really in trouble. Only when your heart, large or small, murmurous or not, no longer pumps the blood through the system need you begin to get perturbed about it.

Nazi-Japanese Attack on Russia Expected Unless She Joins Axis

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—You can now write it down as definite that Hitler will wade into Russia by mid-summer, probably before.

Furthermore, the Russians know it, which is the sole reason for their all-too-late blessing of Yugoslavia, and their equally late benediction to Turkey.

Undoubtedly Stalin has had an inkling of what was in store for him for some time, but it came to a head during the Matsuoka conversations in Berlin, when Hitler and the Japanese foreign minister put it on the line to attack Russia this summer.

The only "if" in their decision was in case the Soviet definitely would join the Axis in waging war against Britain, and accept a relative pittance as her reward in the gamble. Stalin has been asking the return of the Chinese Eastern railway and the northern part of Manchukuo as his hush-money. The Axis, however, is not willing to meet him anywhere near half-way.

They know that Nazi armies can take the Dardanelles overnight, bottle up the Black sea, simultaneously walk into the rich fields of the Ukraine. In other words, Hitler has Stalin right where he wants him.

One phase of this is of special interest to the United States. On the international checker board a move against Russia would mean that Japan could not move in the South Pacific. That should ease the situation around Singapore and the Dutch East Indies—at least for the time being.

Note—It was Stalin's agreement with Hitler to divide Poland that precipitated the war which now seems likely to engulf him.

Army vs. OPM.

THERE was a lot more to the president's statement of dissatisfaction with defense production than appeared on the surface.

What the president knew but did not mention was that there had been sharp clashes between OPM production chiefs and Secretary of War Stimson over the placing of lend-lease contracts. To insiders Roosevelt's statement was notice that he was siding with his Republican secretary of war.

The undercover dispute started when the $7,000,000,000 lend-lease appropriation was still pending in congress. Without waiting for the bill to be passed, Stimson proposed sending out "letters of intent" to various manufacturers cooperating with the British Purchasing Commission. They had been negotiating for $150,000,000 worth of small arms and quartermaster supplies, and Stimson wanted to advise the plants to start work on the orders at once.

This procedure was followed by the army last spring when the first big defense program was before congress. But when OPM production moguls got wind of Stimson's plan they let out a loud squawk, rushed to the war department to urge him to desist. The ensuing conference was hot and vehement.

OPM officials demanded that Stimson hold up the British orders until August, on the ground that if placed immediately their impact on U. S. industry would upset the machine tool program. The British had been dickering with plants not engaged in defense work, which would require considerable re-tooling to handle the proposed orders.

Stimson replied that he knew all this, but the risk of a temporary hitch in the machine tool set-up would have to be taken because it was vital to get production under way for Britain and her allies at once. Ordinarily quiet spoken, Stimson declared with forceful emphasis that he intended to go ahead with his plan to send out the "letters of intent."

OPM officials hotly retorted that they would take up the matter with the president as soon as he returned from his fishing cruise. With a grim, smile, Stimson cordially invited them to do that.

What he didn't tell them, a secret between him and Roosevelt, was that he was acting with the president's full approval.

Mediterranean Lake.

TELL-TALE signs accumulate that the next big Hitler drive, is to make the Mediterranean an Axis lake. The most obvious, of course, is Hitler's unconcealed plan to launch submarine and bombing raids against Suez from his new base at Salonika and from the Greek islands.

Secret plans for closing the other end of the Mediterranean have been evident for some time along the Spanish border where big guns are ready to be rushed against Gibraltar.

Most significant of these preparations, however, has not leaked out. It shows how extensive are Hitler's ambitions around the Mediteranean. For some weeks now, Nazis have been busy dismantling the airplanes of General Weygand in North Africa. Every morning the French wake up to find a magneto missing from one machine, a carburetor from another. Gradually the essential parts of this air fleet have evaporated.

Hitler is taking no chances on letting what remains of the French air force get into British hands. There now seems to be little question that Hitler plans to take over French possessions in North Africa, together with French naval bases, as soon as the time is ripe.

Note—U. S. military observers believe the Mediterranean will be ripe first, next Russia. That is the way the Hitler time-table looks today.

Merry-Go-Round.

BRAINTRUSTER Tom Corcoran, in private law practice since last November, will return to government office early next month—but not as a braintruster. He will be entrusted with a key administrative job as assistant secretary of the navy for air. . . . Socialite Jimmy Cromwell, former U. S. minister to Canada and defeated Democratic candidate for the senate in New Jersey, is quietly plugging himself as successor to Philippine High Commissioner Francis Sayre, if and when the latter steps out. . . . National leaders in many fields will join in an unusual tribute May 15-17 to Bishop Bernard Sheil, of Chicago, assistant to the late Cardinal Mundelein and founder of the Catholic Youth Organization. President Roosevelt will send a personal message to the testimonial celebration.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Because of all the mammoth power projects we have been hearing about for years, you may be shocked as I was to know that the Federal Power commission is talking about a shortage of electricity.

It is potential—not imminent even in the areas where the drain has been greatest—but it is going to take some kilowatt juggling to avoid it. Unless the power production program is stepped up to top speed in the danger zones, says the commission, there may be—within two years or sooner, when national defense swings toward maximum capacity—blackout of whole cities. Remember the "lightless nights" of the World war?

The last complete national report on the situation was made the first of the year, but the power commission says the situation is getting worse, not better. Here's what the commission has to say:

"In about half of the supply areas, there is installed or scheduled for operation this year sufficient capacity to supply anticipated demands. In other areas, it appears that anticipated demands can be met by encroaching on reserves or by additional capacity made available through inter-connections with systems in adjacent areas.

"In nine important war material areas, the demand was 53 per cent more (in December) than estimated three months before."

* * *

Shortage Zones.

LISTED as potential shortage areas where greatest plans must be made for unexpected power loads: Upstate New York, Georgia - Alabama, Pittsburgh, Virginia, Arkansas - Louisiana, and northern California-Oregon-Nevada.

This kind of talk about the nation-wide power situation, private and public, sent me around to see Secretary Harold L. Ickes to find out how his department of interior power projects were standing the strain—and I got another jolt.

In 1930, when the power plans for Boulder Dam were being made, the boys looked over the situation and estimated that by 1980, they would need a capacity of 750,000 to 900,000 kilowatts. The installed capacity of Boulder Dam today is 704,800 kilowats and three emore generators are being added to bring capacity immediately to 947,500 kilowatts—and according to the secretary, every watt is needed. In words of one syllable, Boulder Dam is operating 40 years ahead of schedule—a schedule laid down just ten years ago by some of the nation's ace power authorities.

The Bureau of Reclamation's 25 power plants are increasing their 872,000 k.w. to 1,042,000 and shooting the juice to development of their program of 40 plants with a capacity of more than 1,000,000 k.w.

* * *

Five-Fold Increase.

AT BONNEVILLE DAM, Interior is already planning to increase the initial capacity five-fold. At Grand Coulee, where first of the three initial "largest generators in the world" started putting out pay loads the other day, the initial program has been doubled. At Parker dam, on the Colorado river, the first generators will be installed by the end of this year, nine years ahead of original plans. And at Shasta Dam in northern California, they are racing to complete the project a year ahead of schedule just to get electricity into the highlines as soon as possible.

With the gleam that comes in the Ickes eyes when he scores a point, the secretary said: "The so-called 'white elephants' certain short-sighted spokesman used to find under every dam can barely keep pace with the needs of the moment."

If the Federal Power commission report has it right, it looks to me as if some of the government guessers were a little more too especially those who missed 40 years on Boulder Dam.

A Farmer's Diary

The Plowman

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

MY NEIGHBOR plows today. The dark bay horse walking in the furrow is blind but follows well along the trench the plow has made. The other horse steps along at slower pace. The sturdy plowman follows after, watching the furrow slice that moves rapidly along the mould board and turns the weedy surface downward at his left.

The farmer, dressed in blue denim overalls and wamus, walks contentedly behind his plow. His shoes are heavy and the earth upon the soles is mixed with grass and stubble. His old worn hat is pulled low upon his already suntanned face.

Suddenly he stops and looks cautiously between the hind feet of his horses and the heavy double trees, gets down upon his knees and searches with his rough hands about the faded grass. Carefully, as though he bore something precious, he carries a bundle of weeds and stubbles in both hands and places it in a new, safe spot within a little hollow of the freshly plowed ground. With the pointed stick he uses to keep the plow from choking, he smooths the cool damp earth and makes a path that leads out from the opening.

As he starts the team he casts [illegible] eager [illegible] cradle of [illegible] rabbit folk. This hum[illegible] of the soil, today is cl[illegible] heart throbs of the tim[illegible]s of the open field than [illegible] one may know. Where this farmer plows the nesting meadow larks are safer, the ground sparrows and the serious, plaintive mother quail.

After he makes a round I see him sit upon the handlebars to rest the horses. His back is to the weary team whose heads are drooping, and he gazes far away to the eastern wooded hills. The east wind blows hard against his broad strong body and roars among the trees on the hilltop. The sky has long been overcast, and by evening warm showers will refresh the earth again.

An hour more of labor and he stops at the nearest corner to his home, unhitches the sweaty team that paw and whinner to be on their way. He holds them in check with the long, well-oiled lines until they cross the ditch that leads into the highway. Then they move so fast that he follows after with difficulty. Before he reaches the corner of the barn, his little girl of six comes skipping out to meet him.

Frogs are loud in the nearby swamp. Unheeding, the farmer starts his evening chores.

CHAPTER XXV

Paul caught her glance and smiled. She was clutching her purse and gloves, ready to depart, as he had said, "at a moment's notice."

"We're not going to get out of this as soon as I thought," he told her now as they went back into the lounge. "May as well sit down and relax."

"Not me," Thomas insisted. "I'm going to stay on deck. If Karl does come, I don't want to make things look any worse than they already are."

"Odd that Karl trusts you here with us," Paul meditated.

"He trusts me," Thomas declared, "because he knows I'm afraid of him."

But though neither Joan nor Paul would admit it, both thought that Karl was too clever to overlook the possibility that Thomas might aid Karl's prisoners. Had he deliberately planned it this way?

"Drink your tea dear," Paul advised. "This may be the last food we'll have for quite a while."

They smiled, sending each other a message of courage.

The ship lay quietly. They had not moved since the arrival of the submarine.

"Why aren't we going?" Joan asked. "Do you suppose the submarine is coming back?"

"It's all the better for us if we don't go for awhile."

She did not attempt to understand. Instead she said, "I wonder where Sybil is . . . and Pat What has happened to her?"

"There are times," Paul said unhappily, "when my job seems to involve a lot of personal sacrifice. Leaving Pat as I did was one of them. Having you here is another."

"But Pat and I became involved with Karl in spite of you," Joan reminded him "You did everything you could under the circumstances.

"I thought you would be safer with me than left behind at the mercy of Karl's henchmen. You knew too much for them to let you escape. But I am beginning to wonder which fate would have been worse."

"Your judgment is good enough for me" she comforted. "And I wouldn't want to be away from you. Whatever happens, we'll be together now And Pat will be all right You said yourself that they wouldn't harm her."

"Not harm her, but she'll be sure to go to the police when we don't return and they will have to prevent that Probably Mrs Murdock will take care of that little detail, all of which doesn't exactly put my mind at rest."

They were both silent. It did not seem that any solution could be found by discussion The less they thought about it, the better. The future was so uncertain she forced her mind away from it, but the past held small comfort, and the present was even less pleasant

"If something would only happen!" she cried "This waiting is getting me. Why doesn't Karl come?"

"He's probably eating his dinner," Paul said practically.

* * *

Joan could picture Karl calmly eating, his mind bent on some new plot. Nothing bothered Karl. He had no real emotions. His display of affection for her had been completely artificial Anyone but the inexperienced girl she was would have seen through it. Love was an amusing pastime to Karl, a game he played in his spare moments, but when it interfered with "business" he sacrificed other people's hearts with a carelessness which roused her fury even to remember.

Thomas stood patiently outside. The rain on his slicker gleamed in the darkness

"I think he's more worried than we are," Paul commented.

"That's the first time I've ever heard you admit you were worried"

"I'm only human, honey, and Karl's a tough customer."

"To think," Joan said, "that all this trouble happened just because I answered a want ad for a job"

"It really goes back farther than that," Paul reminded her. "Arthur Mulford fired you or you wouldn't have been out of a job."

"Sybil told me from the first there was something wrong with the job, with Karl too, but I wouldn't listen."

"So Mulford is the cause of all your misfortunes,' ' Paul mused "Wouldn't he be surprised if he knew it?"

She smiled. "Well, life was certainly calm and quiet when I worked for him. I used to wish that something would happen, anything exciting, and it did So I really have no right to complain. Besides, I met you, Paul That makes all the rest worth while"

Paul took her in his arms and kissed her on the forehead "I wanted you to say that dear Sometimes I feel like a heel to even ask you to marry me It doesn't seem fair to expect you to share this crazy life of mine It's all ups and downs and excitement —never knowing what's going to happen next."

"I wouldn't change it or you," Joan whispered "All I want is to share it with you"

Thomas's shuffling footsteps came suddenly to their ears, also a hard tread ascending the stairs

"It's Karl!" Joan cried

She had scarcely uttered the words when Karl Miller's powerful figure loomed in the doorway. He held a pistol.

Paul and Joan faced him silently Behind his back Joan saw the terrified eyes of Thomas.

"You amaze me, Mr. O'Malley," Karl said coolly. "A man in the government service should be more clever than you have been."

"Meaning what?" Paul inquired with assumed indifference

"Do you really think me so stupid?" Karl smiled. "Do you think I would hand over important papers without checking them first?"

"Sorry to disrupt your little plan. You could see for yourself that they are quite worthless now."

"Quite," Karl said coolly. "But I feel that your government would have preferred to lose the plans and have you alive."

"No!" Joan screamed, sensing his meaning

"Shut up! I will deal with you later. Perhaps you will learn that death is preferable to some things"

"If you imagine I am afraid to die, you are wrong," Paul said calmly "To die for a purpose like this could almost be called a pleasure."

* * *

Joan wondered how he could talk like that at a time like this, but Karl had a faint glimmer of approval in his cold eyes. "I admire your courage, Mr. O'Malley Too bad that you fight on the wrong side If you had joined with me we might have gone far together." His hand raised the pistol, his finger was pressed against the trigger.

Joan saw Thomas motion to her and she knew instantly what she must do She snatched the gun from her pocket and fired it directly at Karl Miller With an expression of complete incredulity, he crumpled to the floor.

The gun fell from Joan's hand as she stared with unseeing eyes before her. "I've killed him," she whispered.

Paul's arm was about her "Don't think about it. We're getting out of here."

Thomas took a timid step forward "It served him right," he declared with satisfaction. "He deserved it"

"Where did she get that gun?" Paul demanded

"I gave it to her."

"I've killed him," Joan repeated.

Paul motioned to Thomas and together they helped her from the cabin Outside — complete darkness, a slight wind and the misty rain.

"Do you think you can get those papers from the safe?" Paul asked Thomas. "I'll wait here with Joan"

Thomas looked fearfully over his shoulder.

"There's nothing to be afraid of now," Paul said "Go quickly before the others find out what has happened"

Paul and Joan waited under the narrow ledge of canvas Large drops of rain splattered down on the deck Joan clung to Paul's arm unable to speak "It won't be long now, honey," he said "Try to bear up just a little while longer."

Thomas returned almost instantly with the papers and handed them to Paul "I didn't see anyone," he reported "This all seems too easy."

"Never mind that,' Paul said "Do you think we can lower a boat?"

"Sure But we'll have to go down to the boat deck and one of them will see us They all know what's what They'd shoot us down like Karl would have. We haven't a chance of getting off this boat."

"There's no time to argue" Paul insisted. "I know what I'm doing. Now let's go."

* * *

As they descended the stairs there was no one in sight. The boat used to take the officers back to the submarine was still in the water.

"What luck!" Thomas said

"Not luck," Paul replied "It's there for a purpose You go down first and I'll help Joan"

Thomas disappeared over the side.

THEATERS

Merry Africa.

Having been shown the brighter and more melodic side of life in the South Seas by the trio, Bob Hope, Bing Crosby and Dorothy Lamour, Ohio patrons are now enjoying a mirthful excursion into the mernier parts of Africa via "Road to Zanzibar," comedy with music directer by Victor Schertzinger. Mistaken for white gods by the natives, Bob and Bing have quite a time of it especially after they team up with Lamour and Una Merkel. Eric Blore is also cast

* * *

Fighting Team.

Ever since John Garfield had his first part in the movies speculation ran rife as to when he would team up with Edward G Robinson The match was finally effected in "The Sea Wolf," showing at the Madison, and the result is some of the fastest action fans have ever witnessed As "Wolf Larsen," captain of the notorious "ghost" ship, Robinson battles his way through the picture with Garfield in the role of a sensitive young author. In fact there were 47 fights in the film and the team participated in all but seven.

* * *

Portrays Pioneers.

With the exception of the two principal characters all the featured roles in "Arizona," showing at the Park, are portrayals of actual pioneers notable in the southwest history 80 years ago, among them Kit Carson and Gen. John C Fremont, the pathfinder Jean Arthur and William Holden are starred in this blazing drama of the west when pioneers fought Indians and bad men to make a place for advancing civilization. Warren William and Porter Hall are in the cast. "Ellery Queen, Master Detective" is the second picture.

* * *

Sprightly Comedy.

Bracketing two of the screens' top favorites for the first time, "Lucky Partners," opening Tuesday at the Majestic, is a sprightly bit of entertainment. From the sophisticated pen of Sacha Guitry, the picture presents Ronald Colman as an artist with a secret past and Ginger Rogers as a Greenich Village bookshop clerk. Spring Byington and Celia Loftus are also cast. "Irene," the hit musical comedy with Anna Neagle and Ray Milland is the co-attraction.

* * *

Chico Laughs Last.

Chico Marx is happy to be the living example of the fellow who said, "They laughed when I sat down at the piano." Originator of the famous "shooting the keys" tricks he again reveals his talents in "Go West," the current Marxian attraction at the Ritz. Laid in the gold rush days of Colorado the picture has the brothers foiling villains, staging gun battles and chasing blondes. Diana Lewis and Walter Woolf King are in the cast. "Back In the Saddle" is the second film.

BOSTON FLEETS DUE TO SUPPLY COD LIVER OIL

War-Created Shortage of Medicine Expected to Boost Production.

BOSTON—(UP)—To prevent "a national emergency from the lack of cod liver oil for medicinal purposes" the Massachusetts conservation department is working to replenish a war-created shortage.

Commissioner Raymond J Kenney says few people other than physicians and druggists 'realize the serious situation"

He says in 1939 almost 9,000,000 gallons of cod liver oil were imported but 1940 imports dropped to about 2,250,000 gallons

Air Jets Used To Show Flaws In Gun Barrels

PHILADELPHIA —(UP)—A gage that can detect irregularities as minute as two-millionths of an inch in gun barrel bores was demonstrated before a meeting of the Philadelphia chapter of the American Society of Engineers

The measuration is attained by means of a 1-foot brass rod, with compressed air shooting from jets attached to an end nozzle. The rod is inserted into the barrel and pushed down the entire length.

Variations in the air flow, caused by irregularities are recorded on a thermometer-like indicator

Engineers pointed out that the device was not nearly so intricate as previous instruments for detecting flaws in gun barrels.
